ONE TO WORSHIP

Glamour pack

There's something about holiday packing that has us running around with our knickers in a twist, but these days it's not just how you're packing, but what you're packing it in. Time to dump that tatty nylon suitcase on wheels. A monogrammed Vuitton case, such as this one touted by Lily Rose Cooper (née Allen), tells the world you've arrived, even more so when accessorised with Prada's stripy beach tote. Savvy travellers also pack lightly — turning up at the airport with a carry-on saves time and money. Money better spent investing in a piece of chic luggage, for instance. If you can't afford to have LV on your case, there are affordable options. Check out Globetrotter's range of pop colours. For the fashion-forward, there's the new collection from Lulu Guinness, and Mulberry has a selection of chic holdalls in sexy leopard-print leather. For the boys, a Chapman canvas holdall ticks every box, and Topshop's cute wheelie is less than £50. Sold!

Baggage handler Lily Allen with her LV and Prada. From top Red case, £195, by Lulu Guinness. Men's weekend bag, £225, by Chapman. Trolley, £30, from Topshop. Lemon case, £180, by Brics Sintesis, from Selfridges. Brown case, £525, by Globetrotter. Blue case, £735, by Globetrotter. Leopard-print bag, £495, by Mulberry

EVERYONE'S ROCKING A CHIFFON TUNIC TOP WITH A PAIR OF ROLLED-UP DENIM SHORTS

TREND WATCH BRIGHT FROCKS

We can't ignore it any more. There's a popping evening-dress movement afoot, and it's so bright, it's got us reaching for our Prada marcel-wave sunnies. We first spotted this sexy little subtrend at New York's CFDA awards (the fashion version of the Oscars), where the fashion glitterati and top-tier models turned up in a succession of bright gowns. Top marks go to the supermodels Chanel Iman (left), for her aquamarine stunner, and Doutzen Kroes (above left), for her scarlet showstopper. Our own leading ladies got on board at the Serpentine Gallery summer party. The good news is, this is an easy one for us mere mortals to adopt — a riff on this season's colour-blocking trend. You can pick any brightly coloured frock and you'll still look cool and modern. The gowns are best worn long and floaty (supermodel bod not necessary), and accessories are simple and pared back. What you do need is a bucket of make-up to balance the look. And you know what? We can do that.
